

Chapter 10.10 From DNA to Protein Synthesis

Problems

What percentage of total cell protein is protein?

Background

Genetic proteins are the main structural components of living cells. In addition, they have the catalytic and regulatory functions of the living "factory". First, the specific sequence of amino acids in the polypeptide chain determines the conformation of the polypeptide chain, which determines the specific structure and function of the protein. Second, the amino acid sequence of the polypeptide chain determines the specific sequence of amino acids in the polypeptide chain, which determines the specific structure and function of the protein.

Therefore, you will understand the relationship between DNA and protein synthesis when you understand the background.

Learning Objectives

Genetic Background

From DNA to Protein

1. Describe the process of transcription and translation.

The DNA is first transcribed into messenger RNA, which is then translated into protein. Describe and explain each of these processes in detail.

2. Compare and contrast the two main types of protein synthesis.

What are the differences in the two types of protein synthesis?

3. Explain the relationship between DNA and protein synthesis.
