

CELL REPRODUCTION

Section 10.3: Cell Division

Describe prokaryotic binary fission, which occurs before binary fission eukaryotic. Describe the eukaryotic processes that follow.

Prokaryotic binary fission occurs first in a period known as interphase, composed of growth, replication, and elongation. Prophase is the first phase of mitosis. Prophase begins with the condensing and aligning of DNA into two disjoint chromosomes that are separated within binary fission. During the M phase, each chromosome disjoins. The two copies of each chromosome attach themselves to the centrioles on the opposite ends of the cell. As the cell divides, the centrioles and the two separated chromosomes move and disjoin. Two pairs of disjoint separated chromosomes appear near the disjoining centrioles. The centrioles move toward opposite poles of the cell, and spindle fibers attach from the centrioles to prophase for mitosis.

Anaphase is the separation of chromosomes. During anaphase, chromosomes move toward the centrioles to the ends of the dividing cell.

During metaphase, the chromosomes of each chromosome align at the centrioles and align to the metaphase plate of the dividing cell. After the chromosomes align, they are separated to be individual chromosomes.

Telophase is the last phase of mitosis. After the chromosomes separate ends of the cell, the spindle fibers detach and the centrioles reappear. Centrioles attach to opposite ends of the dividing cell. Centrioles attach to opposite ends of the dividing cell, and a cellular plate is formed near the dividing cell.

Binary cell reproduction is the process of cell division in prokaryotes. It is the only method of cell division in prokaryotes.
