Cellular Respiration

All living things have to have energy for life processes- growing, reproducing, repairing themselves. Some organisms, like plants, can produce their own food using photosynthesis and the sun's energy. Many organisms have to eat to get energy- they are consumers.

The simplest type of food, or energy, is glucose. Glucose is a simple sugar, $C_6H_{12}O_6$. It is used by almost all organisms, from the tiniest bacteria to the largest whale. And don't forget that plants, who make the glucose, also use it for energy.

Eating food isn't enough to get energy. The food has to be converted into another type of energy that cells can use. The process of converting energy from glucose to usable energy is called cellular respiration. Inside the mitochondria of a cell, a series of cycles and chemical changes uses oxygen to break down glucose, making ATP, water, and carbon dioxide.

ATP (adenosine triphosphate) is a molecule of usable energy for all living things. It stores chemical energy in the bonds between the atoms it is made of. When the bonds are broken, energy is released. The energy is often in the form of heat, but can also be chemical energy that causes reactions. An organism uses that energy for its life processes, like making proteins.

1. How are consumers different from producers? _____

2. What household item is similar to mitochondria? _____ Why?

3. What are the reactants (ingredients) of cellular respiration? _____

4. What are the products (things made) of cellular respiration? _____

5. Do plants have to do cellular respiration? _____ Why or why not? _____

6. What is one of the energy transformations that takes place during cellular respiration?
_____ energy to _____ energy.
