Making Human Rights a Reality Emilie M. Hafner-Burton,2013-03-21 In the last six decades one of the most striking developments in international law is the emergence of a massive body of legal norms and procedures aimed at protecting human rights In many countries though there is little relationship between international law and the actual protection of human rights on the ground Making Human Rights a Reality takes a fresh look at why it s been so hard for international law to have much impact in parts of the world where human rights are most at risk Emilie Hafner Burton argues that more progress is possible if human rights promoters work strategically with the group of states that have dedicated resources to human rights protection These human rights stewards can focus their resources on places where the tangible benefits to human rights are greatest Success will require setting priorities as well as engaging local stakeholders such as nongovernmental organizations and national human rights institutions To date promoters of international human rights law have relied too heavily on setting universal goals and procedures and not enough on assessing what actually works and setting priorities Hafner Burton illustrates how with a different strategy human rights stewards can make international law more effective and also safeguard human rights for more of the world population

Trafficking and Human Rights Leslie Holmes,2010-01-01 Human trafficking is widely considered to be the fastest growing branch of trafficking As this important book reveals it has moved rapidly up the agenda of states and international organisations since the early 1990s not only because of this growth but also as its implications for security and human rights have become clearer This fascinating study by international experts provides original research findings on human trafficking with particular reference to Europe South East Asia and Australia A major focus is on why and how many states and organisations act in ways that undermine trafficked victims rights as part of quadruple victimisation It compares and contrasts policies and suggests which seem to work best and why The contributors also advocate radical new approaches that most states and other formal organisations appear loath to introduce for reasons that are explored in this unique book
