BOOK JACKET Expressive Space Gregory Whistance-Smith, 2022-01-19

Video game spaces have vastly expanded the built environment, offering new worlds to explore and inhabit. Like buildings, cities, and gardens before them, these virtual environments express meaning and communicate ideas and affect through the spatial experiences they afford. Drawing on the emerging field of embodied cognition, this book explores the dynamic interplay between mind, body, and environment that sits at the heart of spatial communication. To capture the wide diversity of forms that spatial expression can take, the book builds a comparative analysis of twelve video games across four types of space: spanning ones designed for exploration and inhabitation, kinetic enjoyment, enacting a situated role, and enhancing perception. Together, these diverse virtual environments suggest the many ways that video games enhance and extend our embodied lives.

Creating Second Lives Astrid Ensslin, Eben Muse, 2011-05-09

This book aims to provide insights into how second lives, in the sense of virtual identities and communities, are constructed textually, semiotically, and discursively, specifically in the online environment. Second Life and Massively Multiplayer Online Games such as World of Warcraft. The book's philosophy is multi-disciplinary, and its goal is to explore the question of how we, as gamers and residents of virtual worlds, construct alternative online realities in a variety of ways. Of particular significance to this endeavour are conceptions of the body in cyberspace and of spatiality, which manifests itself in natural and built environments, as well as the triad of space, place, and landscape. The contributors' disciplinary backgrounds include media communication, cultural and literary studies, and they examine issues of reception and production, identity, community, gender, spatiality, natural and built environments, using a plethora of methodological approaches ranging from theoretical and philosophical contemplation through social semiotics to corpus-based discourse analysis.

Voices in Architectural Education Thomas A.

Dutton, 1991-09-30 This book is a unique collection of new and existing articles about progressive architectural teaching and learning. It is about restructuring architectural education, a project that defines itself within a transformative definition of society. Dialectically linking architectural education and society, the book presents authors who conceptualize architectural pedagogy within a critical analysis of the larger society and who construct forms of teaching and learning experiences that reveal and contest professional and societal directions. The authors present a multiplicity of voices including women, people of color, and students' voices, often marginalized but crucial to a remapping of the cultural-political terrain in their struggle to make issues of gender, race, class, etc. central to a reconceptualization of architectural education and pedagogy. This anthology then is more than a mere list of projects and pedagogies; it is a theoretical investigation of critical practices in architectural education that engage the world in order to change it. This book will challenge architectural educators to think consciously of their work and experiences in political and cultural terms. Insofar as architectural teachers plan instruction, determine readings, and select programs and building types for studio investigations, they are implementing a theory. The question of course is whether teachers are fully aware of the theoretical base of their actions. Since theory usually embodies interests grounded in societal forms of power, it has political consequences. This book sees education and pedagogy as forms of cultural politics, constructing a new terrain that will invigorate architectural pedagogy and focus discussion toward a needed architectural-educational-political project. Voices in Architectural Education will be invaluable to professors and students of architecture in both graduate and undergraduate education, as well as to practitioners of the architecture profession.
