

LITERARY ANALYSIS ESSAY

A literary analysis presents an interpretation of a work of literature and supports that interpretation with appropriate responses, details, quotations, and commentaries

STRUCTURE OF A LITERARY ANALYSIS

TITLE uses a creative twist to invite the reader into the essay

INTRODUCTION names the author and the work; contains a thesis statement expressing an interpretation of some aspect of the work

BODY supports the thesis statement with responses, detail from the work, quotations from respected sources and the text, and commentary (use MELELELEC paragraph format)

CONCLUSION summarizes, clarifies, or adds an insight to the thesis statement

As you draft your literary analysis, consult your notes and fill in details, using your outline as a guide. The guidelines below will help you draft your literary analysis.

GUIDELINES FOR DRAFTING A LITERARY ANALYSIS

☆ In the introduction, identify the title and the author of the work you are analyzing. Begin with a strong lead sentence that grabs the readers attention (Go to Bartleby.com and look up quotations related to the theme or topic of your analysis; pull a powerful quotation from the work you are analyzing).

☆ Do not retell the story. You can assume your readers have read the work you are analyzing.

☆ Keep yourself and your feelings out of the analysis. Use the third person point of view, and do not use I.

☆ Use present tense to discuss the work. (For example, write, "The character appears needy at first..." or "In the third stanza, the speaker describes...")

☆ Work your thesis statement into the introduction as smoothly as possible. You want to end with your thesis to lead the reader into your analysis. Revise it if necessary as you develop your draft.

☆ In the body of your literary analysis, present your supporting details in a clearly organized form.

Put each main topic into its own MELELELEC paragraph. Use transitions to show how one detail relates to another.

☆ Throughout your literary analysis, use direct quotations from the work to strengthen the points you want to make. Be sure you document any citations Embed your quotes into your own thinking wherever possible.

☆ In the conclusion, draw together your details to reinforce the main idea of your literary analysis. Restate the thesis in a different form.

☆ Add a title that cleverly suggests the focus of your literary analysis.
