Communicating in Digital Age Corporations Anna Danielewicz-Betz, 2016-11-23. The distinctive point of the book is its innovative interdisciplinary approach to business communication with interconnections between linguistics, sociology, and critical organisational studies as applied to the corporate world. It offers a first-hand insight into primary business discourse with a deeper understanding and analysis of business processes and mechanisms underlying and reflected in enterprise software-mediated communication. It answers the question: what does doing business in the digital age entail, and illustrates business discourse from practitioners' point of view. Grounded in the analysis of empirical data pertaining both to internal and external business communication, the author reflects on the reality of accelerated and pressurised communication in global IT corporations. Following a communication-centred approach, this monograph puts the topic of enterprise software-mediated business discourse into a multi-layered perspective of how global corporations operate: what their primary goals are and what kind of political power they execute. Moreover, it demonstrates how profit-driven corporations can be viewed and interpreted as strategically acting systems within a specific sociological framework.

Creating Digital Content John Rice, Brian McKernan, 2002. In the coming years, more and more stations will throw the switch on the DTV transmitters; cable programmers will begin to increasingly offer wide-screen and HDTV signals via satellite; cable systems will begin, however grudgingly, to deliver digital television programming to homes; and non-broadcast applications from digital cinema to corporate presentations will explore ways these technologies can impact their businesses. This is a unique time in television and video production. Much of the process of creating images for the screen will be similar, if not identical, to the processes of the past, and many of the processes will be radically different. The purpose of Creating Digital Content is to be a resource for the various production aspects of DTV and at the same time will allow a discussion of differing techniques, ideas, and approaches to DTV production.
