College Board Ap Potential:

Updating AP Potential" Expectancy Tables Involving PSAT Maureen Ewing, Wayne J. Camara, Roger E. Millsap, Glenn B. Milewski, 2007 AP Potential is a data driven tool offered by the College Board that uses scores from the PSAT NMSQT to identify students who have the potential to succeed in Advanced Placement Program AP courses College Board 2007 Research showing a moderate to strong correlation between PSAT NMSQT scores and AP Exam scores serves as the basis for this tool Camara and Millsap 1998 Ewing Camara and Millsap 2006 The PSAT NMSQT is a shorter version of the SAT designed to measure reasoning and thinking skills in the areas of critical reading mathematics and writing In 2006 changes to the writing scale were made because it was the first year in which the PSAT NMSQT writing scale was linked to the new SAT writing scale This scale change had implications for AP Potential in that the AP Exams that used PSAT NMSQT writing scores singly or in combination with critical reading and or mathematics scores needed to be updated Thus the purpose of this study was to recompute the expectancy tables for those AP Exams that involved writing Because this report focuses on the expectancy tables that involved writing readers interested in the other AP Exams and in detailed information regarding the proper use of these tables should reference the full report Ewing et al 2006

The Walls Around Opportunity Gary Orfield, 2024-04-16 In our unequal society families of color fully share the dream of college but racial inequality puts their children at a disadvantage from early childhood The Walls around Opportunity argues that colorblind policies have made college inaccessible to a large share of students of color and reveals how policies that acknowledge racial inequalities and set racial equality goals can succeed where colorblindness has failed
