MEDINFO 2021: One World, One Health – Global Partnership for Digital Innovation Paula Otero,Philip Scott,Susan Z. Martin,2022-08-15 The World Health Organization defines health as a state of complete physical mental and social well being and not merely the absence of disease or infirmity and its constitution also asserts that health for all people is dependent on the fullest co operation of individuals and States The ongoing pandemic has highlighted the power of both healthy and unhealthy information so while healthcare and public health services have depended upon timely and accurate data and continually updated knowledge social media has shown how unhealthy misinformation can be spread and amplified reinforcing existing prejudices conspiracy theories and political biases This book presents the proceedings of MedInfo 2021 the 18th World Congress of Medical and Health Informatics held as a virtual event from 2 4 October 2021 with pre recorded presentations for all accepted submissions The theme of the conference was One World One Health Global Partnership for Digital Innovation and submissions were requested under 5 themes information and knowledge management quality safety and outcomes health data science human organizational and social aspects and global health informatics The Programme Committee received 352 submissions from 41 countries across all IMIA regions and 147 full papers 60 student papers and 79 posters were accepted for presentation after review and are included in these proceedings Providing an overview of current work in the field over a wide range of disciplines the book will be of interest to all those whose work involves some aspect of medical or health informatics

Perception of visual advertising in different media: from attention to distraction, persuasion, preference and memory Jaana Simola, Jukka Hyönä, Jarmo Kuisma,2015-02-24 This Research Topic aims to showcase the state of the art in visual advertising research Although visual processes are a central component of consumer behavior they have been largely neglected in models explaining consumer perception of advertising Rather than being the mere input into the cognitive or affective systems the visual processes both voluntarily and involuntarily affect the amount and quality of information that is passed into further mental processing Moreover advertisements provide a well designed rich and stimulating environment to study visual processes in real life conditions Consumers encounter thousands of advertisement messages per day Previous research on visual perception of advertising mostly considers print advertising However advertising messages increasingly appear in a variety of formats and in different media Part of these messages are still conveyed through traditional media such as newspapers magazines television as well as outdoor and supermarket advertising In addition the amount and diversity of visual marketing stimuli is rapidly growing in terms of different advertising formats appearing in online and social media smartphones and tablets This challenges the marketing professionals and academics to better understand the impact of marketing on consumers At the same time the technical development of the research methods allows better opportunities to investigate advertising perception in different environments Traditionally papers investigating the psychological processes underlying advertising perception are published in journals widespread across different disciplines such as marketing applied psychology and human computer interaction journals With this Research Topic we aim to create a forum in which experts in different fields define the state of the art and future directions of the research on the visual aspects of marketing We include reviews and original research papers involving both empirical and theoretical studies on visual perception of advertising across different media
