Borden, 2014-07-29 Explores the evolution of Atlanta's water system and charts the poor urban planning decisions that created the city's current water shortage Atlanta is running out of water and is in the midst of a water crisis Its crumbling infrastructure spews toxic waste and raw sewage into neighboring streams A tri-state water war between Alabama Florida and Georgia has been raging since 1990 with Atlanta caught in the middle however the city's problems have been more than a century in the making In Thirsty City Skye Borden tells the complete story of how Atlanta's water ran dry Using detailed historical research legal analysis and personal accounts she explores the evolution of Atlanta's water system as well as charts the poor urban planning decisions that led to the city's current woes She also uncovers the loopholes in local state and federal environmental laws that have enabled urban planners to shirk responsibility for ongoing water quantity and quality problems From the city's unfortunate location to its present day debacle Thirsty City is a fascinating and highly readable account that reveals how Atlanta's quest for water is riddled with shortsighted decisions unchecked greed political corruption and racial animus Instead of a date filled statistically laden work of history and law Borden weaves a compelling story full of interesting asides and biographical anecdotes I found the history fascinating It represents a real contribution to the literature William L Andreen University of Alabama School of Law

Elizabeth Garner Masarik, 2024-04 With The Sentimental State Elizabeth Garner Masarik shows how middle class women both white and Black harnessed the nineteenth century culture of sentiment to generate political action in the Progressive Era While eighteenth century rationalism had relied upon the development of the analytic mind as the basis for acquiring truth nineteenth century sentimentalism hinged upon human emotional responses and the public's capacity to feel sympathy to establish morally based truth and build support for improving the welfare of women and children Sentimentalism marched right alongside women's steps into the public sphere of political action The concerns over infant mortality and the fall of young women intertwined with sentimentalism to elicit public action in the formation of the American welfare state The work of voluntary and paid female reformers during the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries shaped what would become lasting collaborations between grassroots voluntary organizations and the national government Women saw a social need filled it and cobbled together a network of voluntary organizations that tapped state funding and support when available Their work provided safeguards for women and children and created a network of female oriented programs that both aided and policed women of child bearing age at the turn of the twentieth century Through an examination of these reform programs Masarik demonstrates the strong connection between nineteenth century sentimental culture and female political action advocating government support for infant and maternal welfare in the twentieth century The American City, 1978
