specific impairment that prevent them from boarding or riding a bus ADA requires that only the first of the three categories be provided service and only if they want to travel within 3/4 mile of an existing fixed route To accomplish this around 550 fixed route systems across the nation have increased or added the availability of paratransit services Balog 1997

Consequently there has been a notable and steady increase in the demand for paratransit by disabled people in the post ADA era Since the cost of providing accessible paratransit is definitely higher than the cost of accessible fixed route the increased demand for paratransit is burdening transit agencies Balog 1997 Also some individuals with disabilities currently using paratransit services could effectively use accessible fixed route services at a lower cost to the transit provider This has led a number of transit providers to look for new options to encourage paratransit riders to use fixed route services Most of these options are centered on improving the level of service of fixed route operations and making them more accessible to individuals with disabilities Balog 1997 One such option that has been tried by a few transit agencies in rural and suburban areas with much success is route deviation service Route deviation has the potential to meet the challenges faced by urban public transportation providers in a more efficient manner than the current two service practice Route deviation transit has been used effectively in a limited number of rural and small urban areas of the United States Rosenbloom 1996 and some suburban areas However it has not been proven to be effective in a large urban area Currently the Peninsula Transportation District Commission Pentran operates a fixed route bus system with 13 routes in a service area composed of the cities of Hampton Newport News and York County Additionally Pentran provides paratransit services for the disabled under the mandates of the 1990 Americans with Disabilities Act ADA
