

Chapter 1 Homework

1. "Uncommon" or "emerging" pathogens are ones that are rarely seen in a clinical setting or are new to a geographic area. As a scientist, you will need to follow a logical pattern to determine what the unknown virus is. This logical process is one that all scientists are familiar with the scientific method. The scientific method is a process of determining what natural phenomenon is to be studied and developing a series of experiments to determine what is occurring. Order the steps of the scientific method as a virologist would implement them on the job. Put the following steps of the scientific method in order (from left to right) that should be followed to identify the virus that is causing this disease.

2. The tests for these uncommon pathogens are similar to the ones that have already been performed for the common viruses, but in this case, you will try to identify the DNA or proteins of specific viruses that are not often seen in clinics or hospitals in that area of the country. Each region of the country has certain viral pathogens that are spread throughout the human population that live in that area. When one of these viruses spreads to a new area, we consider it to be "emerging" in this new population of people. Some detective work and deductions will be required. By applying the scientific method, you can focus and refine your list of possible viral pathogens to experimentally test for. You'll begin your investigation by reviewing the patient's history and symptoms and formulating a hypothesis for possible causative agents. Based on what you know of the scientific method, what would you like to do next? Choose what your next step should be.

- Review the patient's charts again.
- Record your test results.
- Revise your list of possible viruses.
- Design and run some tests or experiments.

3. You have successfully completed the experiments and analyzed your results. Your analysis has allowed you to refine your hypothesis and remove all but one virus strain from your list of possible causative agents. With your success at identifying the viral pathogen, you will now need to begin the long process of characterization, the studying of all aspects of an organism to determine whether this virus is truly new or has been isolated and identified before. The characterization will begin with studying the genome of this pathogen. Sequencing machines will determine the order of the nucleic acids that make up the viral genome, and computers will be able to analyze this sequence to determine the genes available for this virus. What is the area of biology that studies the nucleic acid
