VISITING HOURS AT CHRIS HANI BARAGWANATH ACADEMIC HOSPITAL REMAIN UNCHANGED

Chris Hani Baragwanath Academic Hospital (CHBAH) has noted a message currently in circulation on social media platforms, regarding changes to visiting hours.

The hospital wishes to clarify that the consultation process with all relevant stakeholders is still ongoing to review the current visiting hours and no decision has been made to date. Once the consultation process is concluded, a formal announcement will be made to communicate any developments.

The review process was instituted in an effort to improve patient care and facilitates communication between families and clinicians regarding patients' conditions and further address traffic congestion that is often caused by employees and visitors leaving the hospital at the same time.

The hospital management appeal to the community to avoid sharing unverified information as it can cause unnecessary confusion and concerns among our patients and their loved ones. Any official information from the hospital will be shared through various communication channels including social media accounts managed by the hospital.

Furthermore, the hospital strongly refute and condemn the false and misleading message claiming that individuals will be required to pay to visit their loved ones in hospital. Chris Hani Baragwanath Academic Hospital does not charge visitors under any circumstances.
