Herman Melville, 2006-05-01 What has cast such a shadow upon you The Negro With its intense mix of mystery adventure and a surprise ending Benito Cereno at first seems merely a provocative example from the genre Herman Melville created with his early best selling novels of the sea However most Melville scholars consider it his most sophisticated work and many such as novelist Ralph Ellison have hailed it as the most piercing look at slavery in all of American literature Based on a real life incident the character names remain unchanged Benito Cereno tells what happens when an American merchant ship comes upon a mysterious Spanish ship where the nearly all black crew and their white captain are starving and yet hostile to offers of help Melville's most focused political work it is rife with allusions a ship named after Santo Domingo site of the slave revolt led by Toussaint L Overture analogies does the good hearted yet obtuse American captain refer to the American character itself and mirroring images that deepen our reflections on human oppression and its resultant depravities It is in short a multi layered masterpiece that rewards repeated readings and deepens our appreciation of Melville's genius The Art of The Novella Series Too short to be a novel too long to be a short story the novella is generally unrecognized by academics and publishers Nonetheless it is a form beloved and practiced by literature's greatest writers In the Art Of The Novella series Melville House celebrates this renegade art form and its practitioners with titles that are in many instances presented in book form for the first time Benito Cereno & Bartleby Herman Melville, 2021-05-07 Bartleby the Scrivener An elderly Manhattan lawyer with a comfortable business in legal documents has two scribes employed but an increase in business

Dominick Delano is immediately greeted by white sailors and black slaves begging for supplies. An inquisitive Delano ponders the mysterious social atmosphere aboard the badly bruised ship and notes the figurehead which is mostly concealed by a tarpaulin revealing only the inscription "Follow your leader." Delano soon encounters the ship's noticeably timid but polite Spanish captain Don Benito Cereno. Delano believes Cereno's assertion that he and his crew have recently gone through a debilitating series of troubles having been at sea now for an unsettlingly long time. Cereno tells of these tribulations including horrendous weather patterns and the fate of the slaves' master Alexandro Aranda who Cereno claims took fever aboard the ship and died. Gradually however Delano's suspicions increase based on his noting Cereno's sudden waves of dizziness and anxiety, the crew's awkward movements and whisperings, and the unusual interaction of the ship's white and black residents.

BARTLEBY THE SCRIVENER Bartleby the Scrivener: A Story of Wall Street first appeared anonymously in two parts in the November and December 1853 editions of Putnam's Magazine and was reprinted with minor textual alterations in The Piazza Tales in 1856. The narrator, an elderly Manhattan lawyer with a very comfortable business helping wealthy men deal with mortgages, deeds, and bonds, tells the story of a quiet, hardworking legal copyist named Bartleby. One day Bartleby declines the assignment his employer gives him with the inscrutable "I would prefer not to." The utterance of this remark sets off a confounding set of actions and behavior making the unsettling character of Bartleby one of Melville's most enigmatic and unforgettable creations.

Bartleby, The Scrivener Herman Melville, 2020-02-16 It's a source of bafflement to me that Bartleby the Scrivener is not the most famous and celebrated book by Herman Melville. It's a flawless and ambiguous work of art. Sophie Hannah, The Independent. Bartleby the Scrivener: A Story of Wall Street 1853 is a short story by the American writer Herman Melville. In the story, a Wall Street lawyer hires a new clerk who, after an initial bout of hard work, refuses to make copies or do any other task required of him with the words "I would prefer not to." Numerous critical essays have been published about the story, which scholar Robert Milder describes as unquestionably the masterpiece of the short fiction in the Melville canon. Also included in this book is Benito Cereno (1855), another short story by Herman Melville, a fictionalized account about the revolt on a Spanish slave ship captained by Don Benito Cereno. Benito Cereno Herman Melville, 2018-08-06 Benito Cereno Herman Melville. When approached at sea by the slaver San Dominick, Captain Amasa Delano of the Bachelor's Delight is struck by the Spanish ship's dilapidated condition, her peculiar captain Benito Cereno, and the strange atmosphere among the white crew and black slaves. While Delano accepts Cereno's explanation of trying times aboard the Dominick, including the death of the slave master, Delano's doubt persists, and the answers to his questions come in startling fashion. Comparative Study of Herman Melville's Moby-Dick, Benito Cereno and Bartleby, the Scrivener Liya Liu,2015 This is a comparative study of three of Herman Melville s novels Moby Dick 1851 Benito Cereno 1855 and Bartleby the Scrivener 1853 Though these three novels seem to be loosely associated I argue that they are closely connected The three characters Ahab Babo and the lawyer all demonstrate a will to achieve a goal Ahab wants to take revenge on Moby Dick Babo schemes to go back to Senegal the lawyer a capitalist representative aims to earn more money In the process of achieving their purposes they closely interact with their surroundings including people and objects In my study I compare Ahab Babo and the lawyer concerning their interactions with objects and people I further analyze Melville s intentions of drawing on historical figures and events Ahab treats the crew the Pequod and the whale as his physical supplements Instead of killing Moby Dick he ends up becoming a part of the whale Babo directs the staged farce by using the others as his arms and legs The lawyer also displays a tendency to treat his copyists as his physical extensions As former studies suggest Ahab Babo and the lawyer all have their prototypes Ahab s physical features resemble John C Calhoun the author of the war between the United States and Mexico Babo represents the slave revolt leader Mure Herman Melville is the lawyer s prototype Although these three novels deal with different political metaphors they converge in their shared critique of capitalism That is capitalist corrupting influences on the human mind and human relations

Bartleby the Scrivener, And, Benito Cereno Herman Melville,2007 When a New York lawyer needs to take on another copyist it is Bartleby who responds to his advertisement and arrives pallidly neat pitifully respectable incurably forlorn At first a diligent employee he soon begins to refuse work saying only I would prefer not to So begins the story of Bartleby passive to the point of absurdity yet paradoxically extremely disruptive which rapidly turns from farce to inexplicable tragedy Accompanying Bartleby Benito Cereno was first serialized in 1855 and centers around a slave rebellion on board a Spanish merchant ship in 1799
