BASIC CONCEPTS

1. Biology is the study of life.
2. The characteristics of life are metabolism, reproduction, growth, movement, organization, and complex organization.
3. The scientific method (how scientists study biology) is based on the observation of phenomena in scientific experiments that are both possible and feasible (do not take too long).
4. Used to test hypotheses, collect data, and analyze the results of experiments.

EVOLUTION

Evolution is the concept that all organisms are related in such a way that common ancestry is the underlying theme.

1. Natural selection is a scientific theory (the theory of evolution) that states the way in which organisms of one species change over time as a result of those offspring best adapted to the conditions in which they live.
 - a. Individuals usually possess varying characteristics that could possibly survive.
 - b. Those offspring are not identical to their parents but have some variations based on genetic differences.
 - c. Favorable characteristics make organisms that allow them to survive (i.e., adaptability to the environment) and pass their genes on to the next generation.
 - d. Over time, the number of offspring and offspring that survive increases.

2. Natural selection allows what best in an organism's offspring to survive, then adapt to environmental conditions.

CYTOLOGY: THE STUDY OF CELLS

Cell Theory

- All living things are composed of cells and new cells are formed from pre-existing cells.
1. Cell theory is based on evidence that cells of various sizes are common for organisms that inhabit all environments.
 2. Cell theory encompasses:
 - a. All organisms are made of cells.
 - b. Cells are the smallest units of structure and function.
 - c. Cells arise from pre-existing cells.

3. Cell walls (found in the cell membrane in some organisms) composed of carbohydrates, lipids, proteins, and other molecules that form an additional protective layer.
