

5.1 How Populations Grow

Lesson Objectives

-  List the characteristics used to describe a population.
-  Identify factors that affect population growth.
-  Describe exponential growth.
-  Describe logistic growth.

Lesson Summary

Describing Populations Researchers study five important characteristics of a population:

- ▶ Geographic range is the area in which a population lives.
- ▶ Population density is the number of individuals per unit area.
- ▶ Population distribution is how individuals are spaced out in their range.
- ▶ Growth rate determines whether a population grows, shrinks, or stays the same size.
- ▶ Age structure is the number of males and females of each age in a population.

Population Growth Populations can grow, shrink, or stay the same size.

- ▶ Factors that increase population size include births and immigration, which is the movement of individuals into an area.
- ▶ Factors that decrease population size include deaths and emigration, which is the movement of individuals out of an area.

Exponential Growth When conditions are ideal, the larger a population gets, the faster it grows. When a population's numbers grow larger with each generation, exponential growth is occurring. Ideal conditions include unlimited resources and absence of predation and disease.

Logistic Growth Resources become less available as a population grows.

- ▶ Logistic growth occurs when population growth slows and then stops after a period of exponential growth has occurred.
- ▶ Population size stabilizes at the carrying capacity, the maximum number of individuals of a given species that an environment can support.
