

Climate Change Science
Unit 1: Introduction to Climate Change
1. Introduction to Climate Change

Climate change is a long-term change in the average weather conditions in a particular area. It is caused by the increase in greenhouse gases in the atmosphere, which traps heat and causes the Earth to warm up.

1.1. Evidence of Climate Change is supported by many different types of scientific data. The most common evidence includes:

- Temperature Records: Global temperature records show a clear upward trend in the last century, with the most rapid warming occurring in the last few decades.
- Sea Level Rise: The Earth's sea level has risen by about 10 centimeters since 1993, and is expected to rise by 1 to 2 meters by 2100.
- Ice Sheet Melting: The Earth's ice sheets are melting at an accelerating rate, contributing to sea level rise.
- Glacier Retreat: Most glaciers around the world are retreating, and many are disappearing altogether.
- Permafrost Thawing: Permafrost is melting in many areas, releasing large amounts of methane, a powerful greenhouse gas.

1.2. Causes of Climate Change are the factors that lead to the changes in the Earth's climate. The most important causes are:

- Greenhouse Effect: The Earth's atmosphere acts like a blanket, trapping heat and warming the planet. This is a natural process, but human activities are making it much worse.
- Human Activities: Burning fossil fuels (coal, oil, and natural gas) for energy, deforestation, and industrial processes are the main sources of greenhouse gas emissions.
- Natural Factors: Volcanic eruptions, changes in the Earth's orbit, and variations in solar radiation can also affect the climate, but these factors are much less significant than human activities.
- Feedback Loops: Climate change can trigger feedback loops that either amplify or reduce the warming. For example, melting ice sheets reduce the Earth's albedo (reflectivity), which causes more heat to be absorbed, leading to further warming.
