The science of Geography is one of increasing interest and importance It is an essential branch of elementary education and is calculated to awaken and cherish that spirit of curiosity and inquiry which is so natural to the juvenile mind and which under due regulation often leads to the noblest and happiest results Nor is it an unworthy theme for mature and cultivated minds nor beneath the attention of men of learning and taste nor is it important merely as a source of mental diversion and entertainment on the contrary it opens a wide field for improving and profitable contemplation is in many respects connected with the general circle of the sciences and contributes more than is commonly supposed to the formation of the scholar the man of business the patriot and the philanthropist Geographical knowledge more than any other branches is in its nature progressive The field it embraces is large and has as yet been but superficially or partially surveyed Of many parts of the world we are still extremely ignorant They are yet to be explored And as travellers and adventurers from time to time are becoming more numerous intelligent and faithful new degrees of light are successively ordered and fresh discoveries made and announced so that a growing interest is felt on this subject At no former period perhaps have studies and inquiries in this department been more important than at the present They have a direct bearing upon those various systems and enterprises of benevolence which mark the present age and which call forth the wisdom and energies of great and good men One grand reason why multitudes are found so contracted in their sentiments and sympathies and little in their operations is that their education has been very limited and defective They have been accustomed to look only near at home or upon their own gratification interest or party instead of extending their intellectual and moral vision abroad and considering their relation to the whole human family Many of our youth would aspire and attain to greater and nobler achievements if their minds in due season were cultivated and enlarged by an acquaintance with the history of past ages and a liberal knowledge of the present state of the world and of the diversified characters and conditions of its inhabitants About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections
