Cibse Guide 1986 Section A9:

Building Energy Management Systems Geoff Levermore, 2013-07-04 Energy management systems are used to monitor building temperature inside and outside buildings and control the boilers and coolers Energy efficiency is a major cost issue for commerce and industry and of growing importance on university syllabuses Fully revised and updated this text considers new developments in the control of low energy and HVAC systems and contains two new chapters Written for practising engineers essential for control engineers and energy managers in addition to being essential reading for under postgraduate courses in building services and environmental engineering Heating and Water Services Design in Buildings Keith J. Moss, 1996 Avoiding the need for a detailed knowledge of mathematical theory this book involves the reader in working through examples and case studies to come to a thorough understanding of the design of heating and water services in buildings Energy Management and Operating Costs in Buildings Keith Moss, 2013-06-17 Managing the consumption and conservation of energy in buildings must now become the concern of both building managers and occupants The provision of lighting hot water supply communications cooking space heating and cooling accounts for 45 per cent of UK energy consumption Energy Management and Operating Costs in Buildings introduces the reader to the principles of managing and conserving energy consumption in buildings people use for work or leisure Energy consumption is considered for the provision of space heating hot water supply ventilation and air conditioning The author introduces the use of standard performance indicators and energy consumption yardsticks and discusses the use and application of degree days

Air Conditioning Systems Roger Colby Legg, 1991 The efficient use of energy resources both for economic and environmental reasons will remain a top priority for the foreseeable future Roger Legg s comprehensive treatment of air conditioning systems is devoted to ensuring that when installed they not only meet their design criteria but maximize energy efficiency

Window Design Chartered Institution of Building Services Engineers, 1987 This document is a revision and expansion of Technical Report No Daytime Lighting in Buildings The original document was published in 1962 by the Illuminating Engineering Society A revision was published in 1972 Since then attitudes towards the lighting of buildings have changed Some of the reasons for this are the considerable increase in the cost of energy and the recognition of the need to use it efficiently in the commercial sector particularly the use of computers has resulted in different approaches to the use of space within buildings The earlier document concerned itself mainly with design for daylight This new document while sharing this concern brings together in greater detail than before the other design factors which are influenced by daylight design decisions It is all too easy to design windows to provide daylight and at the same time create problems of unwanted noise intrusion glare summertime overheating and energy waste This guide provides designers with a means of identifying the important factors and a method of solving some of the design problems which will inevitably arise The reader s attention is drawn to the fact that in applying data and ideas from the different sections of the guide there will inevitably be a need to retain a balance between often conflicting requirements This document is intended to supplement the current range of CIBSE documentation and there is ample cross referencing The guide is divided into Part A Design sequence and Part B Design information The reference numbers throughout Part A and the supplementary numbers within the sectional reference lists in Part B refer to the Classified Bibliography on page 64 Part A guides the designer through the various stages of design and indicates the interaction between daylighting considerations and others It is cross referenced to Part B which provides more detailed guidance on prediction methods and basic data along with references to the relevant CIBSE publications The design information section is longer than the design sequence which it supports This is inevitable when alternative evaluation and prediction methods are provided It is not envisaged that a designer would ever work step by step through the whole design sequence For this reason Part A is set out in a three column format to enable the reader more easily to locate the particular material which interests him from the left hand column to read the relevant text in the centre column and to pick up the references from the right hand column Many aspects of window design may legitimately be based on experience or intuition rather than on formal analysis for example the use of splayed reveals the position of glazing bars and the use of the colour The role of the design sequence is to prompt the designer when he reaches an impasse and to offer a rational basis for decision making whenever necessary This publication refers to the design of conventional windows in the United Kingdom though it may also apply to other localities with a similar climate Some of the procedures presented are relatively new for example the concept of average daylight factor Although values of average daylight factor have been recommended it should be noted that experience of what the precise values imply in terms of daylight quality and quantity is limited and the recommendations may be changed in the light of experience On a similar note some of the techniques presented for designing conventional windows may not be totally reliable when applied to atrium design Therefore caution is urged when applying the content of the guide to anything other than conventional fenestration In this content window covers vertical glazing in walls and glazing in sloping environments such as roofs Some aspects of window design are beyond the scope of this guide such as constructional methods or problems of strength or weather tightness Guidance on these aspects can be obtained from the window manufacturers Building Services Journal ,1998 Software Abstracts for Engineers ,1991

Air Conditioning Engineering William Peter Jones,1994 This text covers the fundamental science and design principles of air conditioning engineering for the student and professional alike This new edition has been updated to provide greater coverage of developments in safety hygiene and reduced energy consumption An ELBS LPBB edition is available The Heating and Air Conditioning Journal ,1985 Building Services ,1987 4th UK National Conference on Heat Transfer ,1995 The proceedings of the 4th UK National Conference on Heat Transfer organized by the Energy and Thermofluids Mechanics Group of the Institute of Mechanical Engineers Philosophical Transactions of the Royal Society of London ,1992 SASH Design Guide 2 Sports Council (Great Britain),1986 CIBSE Guide C: Reference Data

Cibse,Cibse,2007-06-07 Guide C Reference Data contains the basic physical data and calculations which form the crucial part of building services engineer background reference material Expanded and updated throughout the book contains sections on the properties of humid air water and steam on heat transfer the flow of fluids in pipes and ducts and fuels and combustion ending with a comprehensive section on units mathematical and miscellaneous data There are extensive and easy to follow tables and graphs
