

CALL FOR PAPERS

ACADEMIC YEAR 2022-2023

Last semester, Historical Perspectives was delighted to welcome so many fantastic postgraduate researchers who shared their fascinating work through talks and panels. Our thanks go out to all our contributors!

Our call for papers for the second semester is now open and we're welcoming contributions for both talks and panels. Talks should respond to our theme for the year or you could contribute to the following panels:

Reject Tradition, Embrace Modernity*

And now a reminder of our theme. We're not ignoring the mediaevalists and classicists of the world, don't worry. Nor do we mean the more traditional topics, methodologies, or sources are unwelcome; far from it.

But we know current research is varied, inventive, and fresh. Some might be re-addressing the well-trodden topics with new perspectives; others might be carving out new fields. We're all 'establishing our niche' somehow, and we hope that these talks and panels will help dive into the whys and hows.

PANELS

1st March (provisional)

Let's deconstruct (just to build again): decolonising knowledge

10th May (provisional)

The part-time PhD experience in History

To contribute to a talk session or a panel, please send in an abstract (max 250 words) and a short biography (max 150 words) by Friday 27th January at 5pm to arts-historicalperspectives@glasgow.ac.uk.

Beth R. Wilson, Emily West

Call For Papers 2history:

Sexism in the City James Taylor, 2025-02-20 Sexism in the City is the first book to trace the history of women stockbrokers in the United Kingdom from the late nineteenth to the late twentieth centuries. Forgotten pioneers these businesswomen fought against the odds to establish successful brokerages across the country and in the process challenged society's beliefs about women and money. The book also tells the story of how the nation's stock exchanges denied them membership for generations mobilizing increasingly desperate arguments to try to justify their exclusion until women finally won the right to join the London Stock Exchange in 1973. Though historians have recently reassessed women's role in the development of capitalism highlighting their roles as investors and entrepreneurs they have assumed that because women were not members of stock exchanges they were not active as financial intermediaries until modern times. By spotlighting the lives and careers of women who worked as stockbrokers outside male monopolized institutions this book reframes the historical development of finance in several ways. It highlights the extent to which the seemingly gender neutral institutions and practices of finance were in fact based on gendered ideologies and exclusions. It argues that focusing on institutions only reveals part of the financial ecosystem meaning that we miss what was happening outside the formal market. And it challenges London-centric interpretations of financial history asking questions about the financial cultures existing outside the metropolis. If we look beyond the official exchanges and beyond London a more diverse financial environment comes into view. The history uncovered in Sexism in the City also helps to address problems with financial culture in the twenty-first century. Current reform initiatives are unlikely to succeed unless they acknowledge that for hundreds of years professional identities and institutional structures in finance have been based on the denigration and marginalization of women. Acknowledging the efforts of those female stockbrokers who challenged misogynistic beliefs and defied men's monopoly of high finance by forging their own careers is the first step towards imagining a different kind of market.

Slavery and Emotions in the Atlantic World Beth R. Wilson, Emily West, 2024-12-02 This book explores the history of slavery in the Atlantic World through the lens of emotion. Combining methods from the history of emotions with those from slavery studies often for the first time this collection provides new and important perspectives on the role that emotion played in various slave societies across the Atlantic World. Exploring slavery in Cuba the United States and British and French colonies this book reveals how emotions were central to enslavers' creation, justification and perpetuation of the system of slavery. Simultaneously chapters also evidence the ways in which the enslaved utilised emotion as a form of refusal, resistance and survival. Finally the book considers the legacies and afterlives of slavery including how emotion can inform our understanding of slavery's longer term implications. Taken together the studies in this collection highlight the importance of placing emotions firmly at the centre of the study of Atlantic Slavery. This book was originally published as a special issue of the journal Slavery Abolition.
