Ecotourism Nature Conservation And Development:

Ecotourism, Nature Conservation, and Development Aziza Chaouni, 2014 In the field of desert conservation this book presents a new approach that preserves ecosystems fosters local economic development and capitalizes on both natural and cultural landscapes for ecotourism Situated in the special protected area of Shobak a Jordanian desert region rich in historical background and biodiversity the innovative strategic plan unites the goals of nature preservation and regional development in a groundbreaking way by developing tools for promoting the untapped potentials of wild arid areas It integrates the professions of landscape architecture and architecture with various other disciplines including natural resources management and ecology in order to provide complex tailored solutions that are resilient to shifting socio political contexts and harsh arid environments

Ecotourism for Forest Conservation and Community Development Jeffrey Bornemeier, Michael Victor, Patrick B. Durst, 1997 Ecotourism for Conservation and Development Demeke Datiko, 2012

The basic objective of ecotourism is ecological and socio cultural conservation as well as bringing sustainable development without damaging the environment Ecotourism is widely promoted as a conservation tool and actively practiced in protected areas worldwide It is as a form of leisure conforming to the principles of environmental protection and promoting its natural and cultural values It conveys positive connotations and implies careful considerations of tourist impact This industry can be important in developing countries that directly depend on natural resources Ethiopia has excellent natural historical and cultural tourism resources This book highlights and recommends that in this process government organizations NGOs and public and all stakeholders strongly to use the potential of ecotourism for sustainable development

Responsible Tourism Anna Spenceley, 2012-05-04 Responsible Tourism presents a wide variety of valuable lessons learned in responsible tourism initiatives in Southern Africa that many tourism practitioners can use in their efforts to make the tourism sector work for the poor and for the environment Dr Harsh Varma Director Development Assistance Department World Tourism Organization UNWTO For those interested in how tourism can assist in the economic and social development of societies in need Responsible Tourism effectively integrates scales and types of knowledge to present an informative stimulating perspective It will be on my bookshelf Steve McCool Professor Emeritus Wildland Recreation Management University of Montana Responsible tourism is one of the most significant contemporary issues for tourism scholars and practitioners alike This useful and clearly written collection of new research demonstrates the innovations in responsible tourism occurring within southern Africa and provides lessons for international research and practice Professor Christian Rogerson University of Witwatersrand South Africa Conservation efforts are often seen to be in conflict with local livelihoods and resource use the park versus people debate Responsible tourism and Ecotourism are often invoked as a third way that serve both ends Yet do they actually work in practice This volume delves deep into practice in southern Africa the hotbed of innovation on the issue and provides a comprehensive evidence based examination of what works and what fails using a wealth of information from

scholars and practitioners working in the region This book opens with an overview of the issues looks at what sustainable and responsible tourism are in practice and how they may contribute to conservation poverty alleviation and local economic development Part 1 examines policies and institutional activities in responsible tourism by governments donor agencies and nongovernmental organizations and addresses the market for responsible travel Part 2 considers responsible nature based tourism the economics of wildlife tourism and ecotourism transfrontier conservation areas ecological impacts of tourism and other issues Part 3 looks at more detailed case studies of community based tourism projects and highlights the reasons for successes and failures in this sector The book concludes with a synthesis of the key findings with implications for policy destination planning business management and future private sector and donor interventions Published with the Southern African Sustainable Use Specialist Group SASUSG of IUCN Ecotourism, NGOs and Development Jim Butcher,2007-03-12 Ecotourism has emerged over the last twenty years not just as a market niche but also as a strategy for combining development with conservation in the developing world Ecotourism NGOs and Development considers the basis for advocacy and argues that it is premised upon a very limited and limiting view of the potential for development Jim Butcher examines the advocacy of tourism as sustainable development in a range of NGOs and within the general literature The research reveals that in spite of the plethora of critical commentaries on the operation of ecotourism projects there is generally an uncritical take on the ideological basis of the projects This book offers a timely critique of key assumptions underlying ecotourism s status as sustainable development arguing that ecotourism as development strategy ties the fate of some of the poorest people on the planet to localized environmental imperatives Ecotourism, Nature Conservation and Research Methodologies for Planning Gamini Herath,1996 Tourism, Ecotourism, and Protected Areas Héctor Ceballos-Lascuráin,1996 Environmental Planning in the Caribbean Jonathan Pugh,Janet Henshall Momsen,2006-01-01 Illustrated by case studies from both smaller nations such as Carriacou Barbados and St Lucia and larger countries including Cuba Mexico and Jamaica this volume brings together leading writers concerned with environmental planning in the Caribbean to provide an interdisciplinary contemporary critical overview They argue that context is central to the practice of environmental planning in this region Rather than focusing on a deterministic colonial geography and history this volume proposes that whilst a wide range of foreign planning influences can be felt in different contexts environmental planning emerges in specific settings through the fluid interaction between local and global relations of power Thus a number of chapters explore the effects of external discourses upon the region while others examine discourses on the US style democracy and on tourism Jurassic Wilderness: Ecotourism as a Conservation Strategy in Komodo National Park, Indonesia Henning Borchers,2004-10-04 This study proceeds on Campbell s 2002 argument that in today s biodiversity conservation discourse the traditional exclusionary conservation narrative co exists with a counter narrative on sustainable use through ecotourism Based on the perception of a global biodiversity crisis the conservation landscape has seen the resurgence of the traditional conservation discourse which reinforces the argument against social objectives of conservation and for an exclusionary conservation approach drawing on the notion of wilderness. Local resource use practices are restricted or prohibited while ecotourism is considered the most sustainable option. However, as a proposed alternative livelihood strategy for local residents, ecotourism often fails to deliver on claims that it significantly benefits local development while it may be more conducive to furthering ecological imperatives. Based on an analysis of the management of Komodo National Park, Indonesia, and the development of communities within the Park, this study argues that ecotourism may only be a politically attractive slogan that provides conservation agencies with the political and economic justification for an exclusionary protected area management approach. Instead of taking into account economic, social, and cultural concerns of local residents, a conservation regime that adopts ecotourism as a conservation strategy may ultimately leave local people struggling to meet their present needs.

Science and Stewardship to Protect and Sustain Wilderness Values, 2003
The Seventh World Wilderness Congress met in Port Elizabeth, South Africa, in 2001. The symposium on science and stewardship to protect and sustain wilderness values was one of several symposia held in conjunction with the Congress. The papers contained in this proceedings were presented at this symposium and cover seven topics: state of knowledge on protected areas; issues in South Africa; traditional and ecological values of nature wilderness systems and approaches to protection; protection of coastal marine and river lake wilderness; spiritual benefits, religious beliefs, and new stories; personal and societal values of wilderness; and the role of science, education, and collaborative planning in wilderness protection and restoration.

Influence of Ecotourism on Conservation Policy for Sustainable Development, Fred Thomas Wildes, 1998
The Recreational Frontier, Michael Kleinod, 2017. This study treats ecotourism in National Protected Areas of Lao PDR as a recreational frontier which instrumentalizes the recreation of human natures in capitalism's centers for that of nonhuman natures at capitalism's closing frontiers. This world ecological practice of recreational instrumentality, i.e. of nature domination in the name of Nature, presents a remedy for capitalism's crisis that is itself crisis-ridden, enacting a central tension of ecocapitalism that between conservation and development. This epistemic institutional tension is traced through the preconditions, modes, and effects of ecotourism in Laos by gradually zooming from the most general scale of societal nature relations into the most detailed intricacies of ecotouristic practice. The combination of Bourdieu, Marx, and Critical Theory enables a systematic analysis of the recreational frontier as enactment of various contradictions deriving from the false and real Nature Society dualism.

Ecotourism for Conservation? Amanda L. Stronza, Carter Hunt, Lee A. Fitzgerald, 2019. Ecotourism originated in the 1980s at the dawn of sustainable development as a way to channel tourism revenues into conservation and development. Despite the win-win idea, scholars and practitioners debate the meaning and merits of ecotourism. We conducted a review of 30 years of ecotourism research looking for empirical evidence of successes.

and failures We found the following trends Ecotourism is often conflated with outdoor recreation and other forms of conventional tourism impact studies tend to focus on either ecological or social impacts but rarely both and research tends to lack time series data precluding authors from discerning effects over time either on conservation levels of biodiversity ecosystem integrity local governance or other indicators Given increasing pressures on wild lands and wildlife we see a need to add rigor to analyses of ecotourism We provide suggestions for future research and offer a framework for study design and issues of measurement and scaling

Ecotourism Anton Krause, Erich Weir, 2009 Ecotourism can be conceptualised as a reconciliation of tourism and environmentalism The environmentalist dimension of ecotourism involves environmental education and financial support of nature conservation Extensive and intense human activity has altered the balance of ecosystems to the detriment of the natural environment The movement of people capital goods and services has caused different types of ecosystem changes including deforestation Marine ecotourism offers contemporary attractive alternatives to marine resource use within marine protected areas MPAs This book reviews our current state of knowledge on the development effects and management of ecotourism in MPAs identifies factors affecting the appropriateness success and sustainability of ecotourism in MPAs and highlights research and practice priorities in the future Also summarised in this book are the documented impacts of recreational uses on the coastal marine environment of the Mediterranean These range from the impact of recreational boating on seagrass meadows the effects of scuba diving on hard sessile benthic invertebrates and the possible disturbance of marine mammals by whale and dolphin watching activities Other chapters in this book analyse the current state of the art of ecotourism in Cameroon an overview of present status quo of ecotourism and its educational activities with its utilisation of wild animals in Japan the effects of coastal ecotourism and water quality in the Yucatan Peninsula and the impact of tourism management on a population of infant monkeys The findings suggest that tourism leads to high levels of stress aggression and infant loss at this site Several recommendations are offered to minimise harmful effects to help ensure that natural behavioural patterns are fostered
