After school let out, my best friend and I, used to go to one of the oldest parts of the city. From the little trail beside the school, we'd climb down to the old railway tunnel that had gone dark many years before that pitch darkness was terrifying and mysterious. We would go down, staring into that darkened tunnel, having our flashlights. We would leave our backpacks at the edge of the tunnel, knowing that they would be good landmarks when we re-emerged. As the throng of New Jersey Turnpike traffic roared overhead, we would enter.

But we were always looking for the traces of the history of our city.

[1] When we first started going down into the tunnel, we
