Helpful Hints

- At this early stage your child's emotional state depends on yours. Try to stay relaxed, breathe deeply.
- If at any stage your child seems highly stressed by an activity STOP IMMEDIATELY, allow your child time to relax and work on other activities. You can return to the skill later if your child is relaxed and comfortable.
- Where possible have both parents or 2 adults that your child is comfortable with in the water. It's great bonding time with your child and both parents get a chance to learn the skills.
- Always consider environmental factors when swimming with your child. If conditions change that may have an adverse effect on your child STOP.
