

Comma Use

1. Use a comma before a coordinating conjunction (and, but, yet, or, nor, for) when it joins two complete ideas (independent clauses).

Example: We have a big biology test tomorrow, so I will go home and study.

2. Use a comma after an introductory clause or phrase. A comma tells readers that the introductory clause or phrase has come to a close and that the main part of the sentence is about to begin.

Example: When it was time for the bell to ring, students got their things ready to take home.

3. Use a comma to separate each item in a series of three or more items.

Example: She dressed, grabbed food, and left for school.

4. Use a comma to set off an appositive. An appositive is a noun or noun phrase that renames or explains a nearby noun.

Example: Mrs. Jones, the math teacher, surprised all the students with her amazing voice.

5. Use a comma when a speaker names the person they are speaking to. This direct address is indicated with a comma or commas, depending upon its placement within the sentence.

Example: Will you help me study for the test, Jagan?

6. Use a comma to set off a direct quotation of the words spoken.

Example: "Please turn in your work when you finish," said the teacher.

7. Use a comma to set off the day and year from the rest of a sentence.

Example: On July 4, 1776, the Declaration of Independence was adopted.

8. Use a comma to separate the elements of an address or place. (Zip codes are not included.)

Example: Please send the check to Dr. Adams at 402 Spring Street, Omaha, NE 68107.

9. Use a comma after a name to separate a title from the rest of the sentence.

Example: Nadine Yessens, MD, will be leading the students through the science lab.

10. Use a comma to separate numbers with more than four digits into groups of three starting from the right. Example: 1,400,642
