Postcolonial Imaginations and Moral Representations in African Literature and Culture Chielozona Eze, 2011-12-16 The postcolonial African culture as it is discoursed in the academia is largely influenced by Africa's response to colonialism To the degree that it is a response it is to considerably reactive and lacks forceful moral incentives for social critical consciousness and nation building Quite on the contrary it allows especially African political leaders to luxuriate in the delusions of moral rectitude imploring at will the evil of imperialism as a buffer to their disregard of their people This book acknowledges the social and psychological devastations of colonialism on the African world It however argues that the totality of African intellectual response to colonialism and Western imperialism is equally if not more damaging to the African world In what ways does the average African leader indeed the average African judge and respond to his world How does he conceive of his responsibility towards his community and society The most obvious impact of African response to colonialism is the implicit search for a pristine innocent paradigm in for instance literary philosophical social political and gender studies This search has its own moral implication in the sense that it makes the taking of responsibility on individual and social level highly difficult Focusing on the moral impact of responses to colonialism in Africa and the African Diaspora this book analyzes the various manifestations of delusions of moral innocence that has held the African leadership from the onerous task of bearing responsibility for their countries it argues that one of the ways to recast the African leaders responsibility towards Africa is to let go on the one hand the gaze of the West and on the other of the search for the innocent African experience and cultures Relying on the insights of thinkers such as Frantz Fanon Wole Soyinka Kwame Anthony Appiah Achille Mbembe and Wolfgang Iser this book suggests new approaches to interpreting African experiences It discusses select African works of fiction as a paradigm for new interpretations of African experiences

Chinua Achebe's Things Fall Apart Ben J. Ezuma, 1965 The Fiction of Chinua Achebe Jago Morrison, 2009-07-23 Since the emergence of Things Fall Apart in 1958 Chinua Achebe has come to be regarded by many as the Godfather of modern African writing Over 150 full length studies of his work have been published together with many hundreds of scholarly articles This Reader's Guide enables students to navigate the rich and bewildering field of Achebe criticism setting out the key areas of critical debate the most influential alternative approaches to his work and the controversies that have so often surrounded it The Guide examines Achebe's key novels with the main focus on Things Fall Apart and also discusses his less well known short fiction Including discussion of important Nigerian scholarship

that is often inaccessible this is an invaluable introduction to the work of one of Africa's most important and popular writers

Things Fall Apart, Chinua Achebe Chinua Achebe, 2002 A reading and study guide for Chinua Achebe's novel Things Fall Apart

Colonialism in Chinua Achebe's Things Fall Apart Louise Hawker, 2010 Great literary works resonate with readers not only because of well developed characters and plots but also because they often reflect important social themes

The Social Issues in Literature series brings together the disciplines of sociology and literature in a unique format designed to support cross curricular studies Each volume explores a work of literature through the lens of the major social issue reflected in it and features carefully selected content representing a variety of perspectives All volumes in the series contain biographical and critical information about the author secondary excerpts offering both historical and contemporary views of the highlighted social issue a timeline of the author's life a For Further Reading section of other works on the issue and a detailed subject index Book jacket

Indigenous Identity in Witi Ihimaera's "Whale Rider" and Chinua Achebe's Fiction Annemarie Pabel, 2011-12-24 Bachelor Thesis from the year 2011 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Literature grade 1.0 University of Dusseldorf Heinrich Heine language English abstract In both Chinua Achebe's Things Fall Apart and Witi Ihimaera's The Whale Rider indigenous identity is a central topic Yet it is challenged by the advent of colonization or in the latter case by the fusion of ancient tradition and modernism As such the aim of this paper is to analyse the literary representation of indigeneity in these novels using Stuart Hall's dual definition in order to show how indigenous identity develops at the backdrop of colonization and what this means for the concept of identity in a postcolonial context Subsequently attention will be drawn to the ways in which the individual is representative of indigenous identity and how this relates to the dynamics between community and individual This part will contrast the idea of a stable self with a transformative one and thus also establish a connection to the succeeding analysis of diaspora identities in Things Fall Apart which are based on constant progress The results will then provide the basis for a discussion of relocation and hybridity to subsequently contextualize them in the concept of diaspora identities and more generally postcolonialism Although the focus of the analysis is on Things Fall Apart the background of the last chapter will be used as an occasion for a brief discussion of the second part of his trilogy No Longer at Ease After this a similarly structured analysis of Witi Ihimaera's The Whale Rider will be pursued Firstly the literary representation of features of oral tradition and orality in general will be examined before attention is directed towards myth as a major constituent of Maori identity and its use in the novel To embed the representation of identity in the broader concept of postcolonialism the novel will then be discussed in terms of rewriting Nevertheless the aim of this chapter will not be a comparative approach of the ancient pretext as a basis for the modern novel How have Western influences and elements of globalization been interwoven in the narration And how do these contribute to rewriting The result will be drawn on to answer these questions of the significance of rewriting and relocating for the concept of cultural identity The purpose of this comparison is to clarify the major differences and similarities which is a prerequisite of the contextualization of the concept of identity in postcolonialism as will be done in the conclusion

Things Fall Apart Chinua Achebe,199? African Research & Documentation ,2009 Aesthetic Ideology and Oral Narrative Paradigms in Things Fall Apart and Arrow of God Ousseynou B. Traore,1981 Chinua Achebe Rose Ure Mezu,2006 One of the critical concerns in Nigeria is how to alleviate poverty in the country The general prevalence of poverty in Nigeria is paradoxical because the country is one of the biggest oil producing countries in the world A 1999 World Bank report for instance showed that some 70 per cent of the population lives below the bread line usually considered as living on less than US 1 00 a day This raises a number of very important questions What are really responsible for the wide prevalence of poverty in Nigeria in the midst of plenty How is poverty manifested in the country What alleviation strategies are in place How effective are they And what are the implications of all these for the country s democracy project political stability nation building and development discourse Contributors to this volume address these questions and provide insights into some of the central issues in the discussion of poverty including how the poor themselves struggle to cope or adapt to their condition Using multidisciplinary perspectives the contributors critique the current alleviation strategies and recommend more viable and better targeted approaches that will sharply reduce the incidence of poverty in Nigeria
