

HOW TO

CHOOSE THE RIGHT DOZER BLADE

With the best blade for the job site you can increase the versatility of nearly any dozer.

S-BLADE

The straight blade has no side wings, making it the shortest of dozer blade types. Designed for shaping, stripping, and fine grading surfaces, the lack of wings reduces the blades ability to lift or carry material as it will fall off the edges during prolonged pushes.

U-BLADE

The U-Blade is designed to move big loads across long distances. The large wings and curved shape cradle loose materials like coal or soil and keep the load contained as it's transported across the ground.

S-U-BLADE

The S-U-Blade has smaller wings than the full U-blade and less curve like an S-Blade making it the middle ground in dozer blades – less capacity, but increased strength.

PAT-BLADE

With multiple hydraulic cylinders allowing the dozer blade to tilt and angle in nearly every direction the PAT-blade is a versatile blade that allows an operator to shape and finish ground to exacting specifications and to move material with precision.

CUSHION BLADE

If another machine like a scraper or a track-type tractor needs to be pushed, the cushion blade is specifically designed for that task with reinforced areas and specially designed systems to absorb shock.

4 Key Tips To Consider When Choosing Your New Dozer Blade

OEM vs New Aftermarket vs Used

Consider the age of your machine and balance your investment. New aftermarket and used bulldozer blades are often a reliable and affordable option for most dozers.

Survey Your Jobs

Evaluate the most common jobs you perform with your dozer and match that to the blade that will work best. Think about both current work and upcoming jobs where you'll use the blade.

Gather Your Data

The blade's seller should be able to provide you with details on the condition of the blade overall as well as individual aspects like pinholes, moldboards, and any included cylinders.

Picture It

Ask the seller for pictures of the blade to inspect yourself and confirm it's going to be the perfect blade for your dozer.
