Tourism in Kenya Philipp Bachmann,1987 This study deals with the problems of mass tourism in Third World countries focussing mainly on the poor section of the population After careful evaluation of the existing specialized literature the author examines the issue taking as an example the development of tourism in Kenya in general and in the town of Malindi in particular It is found that a very small portion of the population is affected by the package tour industry and largely in a negative way The author shows that by encouraging different kinds of tourism the existing infrastructure could be used advantageously and the effects on the socio cultural fabric of the local population would be less negative than with the foreign controlled tourist industry at present

Tourism and Politics Peter M. Burns,Marina Novelli,2007-03-14 Tourism and Politics aims to disseminate ideas on the critical discourse of tourism and tourists as they relate to politics through a series of case studies from around the world written by specialists with an emphasis on linking theory to practice That tourism is a profoundly important economic sector for most countries and regions of the world is widely accepted even if some of the detail remains controversial However as tourism matures as a subject the theories underpinning it necessarily need to be more sophisticated tourism cannot be simply read as a business proposition with a series of impacts Wider questions of politics power and identity need to be articulated investigated and answered While the making and consuming of tourism takes place within complex political milieux with multiple stakeholders competing for benefit the implications are not fully understood Literature on tourism and politics is surprisingly limited This book will make a substantial contribution to the theoretical framework of tourism
