Policy: Strengthening Families for America's Children Richard M. Lerner, Elizabeth E. Sparks, Laurie D.

McCubbin, 2013-03-09 Family Diversity and Family Policy describes the dimensions of diversity which characterize the contemporary American family and discusses the implications for public policy and associated intervention programs linked to this diversity. The authors contend that if the programs and policies available to support families are to be most useful they need to reflect the diversity of the families they intend to help. Beginning with a discussion of the historical and contemporary context of the American family, Family Diversity and Family Policy focuses on child poverty and argues that this topic may be usefully studied within the context of developmental systems theory. This theory systematically links the development of individuals to variations in their physical and social ecology and is used as a framework for discussing contemporary challenges faced by parents charged with rearing adolescents and the familial and societal issues that arise when the adolescents being reared are parents themselves. Current policy issues that arise from welfare debates in the United States and from recently enacted welfare reform legislation. The importance for our nation of developing a comprehensive national youth policy. The authors draw implications for the design, delivery and evaluation of diversity sensitive policies and programs for families and youth and offer a vision of how to link scholars, policy makers and community members in multi professional and multi institutional collaborations promoting the positive development of American families and youth. Family Diversity and Family Policy is relevant to scholars and policy makers interested in human development particularly of children and adolescents. In addition it should be essential reading for practitioners and policy makers in government, private industry and public and private social service organizations.

Danuta Bukatko, 2008. This new chronological edition is based on the well established topically organized text by Bukatko and Daehler, Child Development: A Thematic Approach, 5e. Addressing physical, social and emotional development in a linear fashion, this text starts with pre-natal development and progresses through birth and the newborn baby, infancy and toddlerhood, early childhood, middle childhood and adolescence. Developed to accommodate the more applied focus of courses in nursing, parenthood education, family studies and human ecology, this text benefits from the authors' focus on research through an emphasis on developmental themes. Five themes on development are found in every chapter and are listed in the chapter opener, called out in the margin where the theme is addressed and summarized in a Summary of Developmental Themes section at the end of the chapter. The five themes explore nature and nurture, sociocultural contexts, continuous vs. discontinuous development, the domains of development and risk or resilience in development. Extensive Contexts of Development chapters for each development stage broaden the scope of the issues discussed by examining the child/adolescent within the context of family, peers and community. Research Applied to Parenting Education boxes provide practical advice based on research findings and cover such topics as reducing SIDS, monitoring TV viewing, reciprocal
